BILL BARWICK

Just In Case

BVM-008

He's the gruff, commanding basso of the lasso! Cowboy Music's answer to...what?...the lowest note on the piano, I guess! That's our buddy, the Voice of The Westerns Channel, Bill Barwick!

There's an odd scientific fact concerning Mr. B. Namely, it seems that to hear him is to love him. Among those who've heard him I've never found anybody who doesn't. His newest excursion into the Western Music arts will only bring him more eager fans.

And there are some interesting folks along for the ride. Frequent performing partner and autoharp meister Roz Brown joins in a duet with Bill on "Silver Haired Daddy Of Mine" and adds his silky strumming. Locke Hamilton of Prickly Pair joins in a second one... Bill's take of "The Ranch Sale," which she and hubby Les did on one of their own "PP" CDs so effectively.

On his own, Bill tells us about his buddy Justin Case who so often bails him out of scrapes due to whatever was brought along just in case. And he takes a great romp on the song "Bill Jones General Store." Other terrific tracks include "Cold Moon," "The Wrangler," "There's A Rodeo Behind Us" and "Crooked Nose Jack." Twelve tracks in all.

Bill Barwick's recordings are always worth the listen, and if you happen to have Bose speakers on your sound system, his bass voice can help vibrate stubborn paint off your walls for you!
